Kim Webb

Hill Neighborhood Center

I did my internship in Spring 2018 at the Hill Neighborhood Center, a small museum which has exhibits, conducts research, and hosts related archives. During my internship, I assisted in organizing the archives, collecting oral histories, researching about neighborhood history, putting together exhibits, and compiling history booklets about the history and significance of certain Hill institutions. This internship was really great for my history major because it gave me experience in the non-academic side of history, and it affirmed my passion for immigration history!
